Unscientific telephone poll

Majority favors widening over a new freeway

By DAVID LELAND

ALMOST TWICE as many Carmel area residents believe that traffic needs could be met by widening the existing Highway 1 than by constructing a new freeway through Hatton Canyon, according to telephone poll by The Pine Cone.

The survey, which randomly polled 209 residents from central Carmel, Carmel Valley and outlying areas such as Carpenter Street, Yankee Point and Big Sur, was conducted on Dec. 3 and 4.

(The results of the survey are in no way a true scientific sampling of community sentiment, but merely an informational forum for the benefit of our readers.)

Respondents were asked four questions: 1) Do you believe traffic levels are unacceptable on Highway I between Carpenter Street and the Carmel River? 2) Do you support contruction of a freeway running through Hatton Canyon? 3) Do you think traffic levels could be met by expanding the current lighway 1? 4) Has Caltrans been responsive to the overall needs of the area?

Respondents had the option of answering yes, no or undecided.

Pollsters said that they were surprised at the large number of undecided votes from outside the city of Carmel. Undecided respondents said they generally were unconcerned with the freeway project.

The proposed $26 million Hatton Canyon Freeway project includes construction of a four-lane freeway extension from Holman Highway and Highway I through Hatton Canyon, with interchanges at Carpenter Street and Carmel Valley Road.

The road will continue south from Carmel Valley Road as a two-lane road to the Carmel River, where a new bridge will transition into Highway I south to Big Sur.

Here are the survey results:

 A total of 143 respondents answered that traffic levels were unacceptable on the existing highway, while 41 said the road was safe. Twenty-five people were undecided.

Caltrans traffic data indicates that the twolane section of Highway 1 between Carmel Valley Road and Ocean Avenue is one of the most heavily travelled two-lane highways in the state.

Moreover, the Monterey County Transportation Commission has suggested that the road is operating in stop-and-go traffic for 14 hours a day, with traffic levels projected to increase 30 percent during the next 20 years.

• A slight majority (93 to 63, with 53 undecided), of the respondents answered that they support a freeway that runs through Hatton Canyon.

While Caltrans has supported this alignment, there has been mounting opposition from concerned citizens and environmentalists that the natural habitat in the area will be forever altered if the road takes that course.

Indeed, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has voiced opposition to the 1.5 acres of "wetlands" that will be disturbed by the construction.

Caltrans has plans to replace the vegetation that is displaced by the construction.

 A majority (115-60, with 34 undecided), believe that traffic concerns can be met by simply widening the existing Highway 1.

Caltrans has constantly fought such a proposal, saying that would only provide temporary relief, and that traffic congestion would soon return to its present state.

But a growing number of residents have indicated that they are willing to take that chance in order to maintain the ambiance of the peninsula intact.

• A slight majority (90-68, with 52 undecided), told The Pine Cone that they believe that Caltrans has not taken into account the overall needs of the Carmel area in its design.

The state Coastal Commission has advised Caltrans to educate peninsula residents to its plans, and Caltrans has held several public forums during the past several months, but none since September.

Caltrans has been meeting regularly with the Hatton Canyon Advisory Committee, a county-appointed group of citizens and city and county officials, in an effort to solicit design input.

IF CALTRANS' plans for a highway running through Hatton Canyon are realized, about 26 acres of Monterey pines, some of which are seen in this view looking south over the canyon, will be destroyed. (Nancy Hills photo.)

Coastal agency hearing on new freeway

ALMOST 30 years of history could conclude next Thursday when the state Coastal Commssion hears arguments regarding the proposed $26 million Hatton Canyon Freeway project.

If the Coastal Commission finds the freeway in accordance with the state Coastal Act, the matter will be forwarded to the Federal Highway Administration for approval.

Here are the details concerning the meeting:

Time: 10 a.m. (The exact agenda time is not available. That depends on how long the preceding matters take to complete.) Date: Thursday, Dec. 15.

Place: The El Dorado Room of the Cathedral Hill Hotel at Van Ness Avenue and Geary Street in San Francisco.

Phone: (415) 776-8200.

For those needing alternative transportation to San Francisco, Carmel resident Enid Sales is taking reservations for bus transportation on Cypress Coast Tours.

For $10.52 (roundtrip), people will leave at 7 a.m. from the Carmel Plaza and leave San Francisco at 4 p.m., returning to Carmel about 6:30 p.m.

The bus holds 47 passengers. At press time 20 seats had been sold.

Sales points out that all tickets must be prepaid, with a check mailed to her no later than Saturday, Dec. 10.

Money for tickets may be sent to: Enid Sales — Bus trip 3206 Serra Ave. Carmel, CA 93923 Sales may be reached at 625-0566.

Harsh realities

Dear Editor:

Congratulations on your editorial of Dec.

1. You are absolutely right, and the only media type of any persuasion to take on the water board.

The harsh reality of possibly running out of water seems to have escaped the imaginations of all the governing agencies on the peninsula.

Crux of the matter

Dear Editor:

I coudn't agree MORE with your editorial Dec. 1, "Time to get tough." The crux of the matter is in this sentence:

"How can the water board expect people to believe that rationing is fair and equal when those who already live here must give up their share to stretch a shrinking resource, while the board increases the numbers dipping into it?"

Yes, sometimes unpopular decisions must be made, but I will forever resent the big water users (except hospitals), AND the present water board members if we residents must skimp to benefit new developments.

Furry subject

Dear Editor:

On the subject of fur — what fun to have a new fur coat. How pleasant for the buyer.

Not, however, pleasant for the animal to whom the fur has belonged.

Trapping is agony. Animals can spend a day to a week until the trapper comes by bringing release with a bludgeon.

The fur trade would like the public to think that fur farms are humane, that animals on fur farms don't suffer.

The public needs to be informed that short lives are spent in overcrowded, wire bottom cages, Methods used to kill range from chloroform to neck-breaking. Humane euthanasia is used rarely because it is not economical. A major concern is a flawless pelt, not a painless death.

It takes 15 or so foxes to make a fur coat.
The time has come to give serious thought to wearing of fur.

Grassroots victory

THE TWO-YEAR battle to save the Flanders Mansion should certainly qualify in the history of Carmel as an important victory for grassroots politics and citizen involvement.

The conflict began about two years ago when the city council got a strong taste of that grassroots effort and some citizens discovered they really do care what happens in this town.

The council had put up for sale two pieces of Mission Trail Park, including the 68-year-old Flanders Mansion. Some councilmembers stated that no one used the property enough for anyone to care. The sale, they believed, was a good business move.

When certain residents became aware of the plan, councilmembers must have felt like they had just suggested to Scarlett O'Hara that she sell Tara to the Yankees because "it was just an old rundown plantation anyway."

The experience was a good lesson for both sides of the fence — elected officials and the citizens of Carmel.

This past Dec. 1, rather than mailing escrow papers or issuing demolition permits, the city submitted a request for a $500,000 state grant for the rehabilitation of the house.

More importantly, there is now a resolution stating the city will not sell any portion of Mission Trail Park, including the mansion.

Flanders Mansion, once considered a beautiful white elephant, is now headed for the federal registry of architecturally historic buildings.

All those changes took a lot of hard work and dedication by people who cared enough to stand up for something they love, and stick with it through thick and thin.

The Flanders Mansion/Mission Trail Park effort is an example of the impact citizens can have on their city and environment.

Local government is where citizens can directly influence decisions made by elected officials.

Conversely, nothing affects us individually more than local politics. All too often we ignore what is going on until it is too late to save what many of us love the most — where we live.

As for the politicians, they should note that it is easy to lose touch with the general public — what looks like a good business move depends on what business you're in.

To avoid a narrow view, local officials should involve themselves in a wide spectrum of people — whether they agree with their opinions or not. That includes, but is not limited to, the so-called "loyal opposition."

As for the Flanders Mansion and Mission Trail Park, if the ending is to be "and they lived happily ever after," the citizens of this town owe a debt of gratitude to some very hardworking individuals.

There are so many, The Pine Cone apologizes to any we may miss or fail to mention individually. However, there are some who deserve a substantial pat on the back.

In the beginning it was Linda Smith, her mother Barbara Lachmund, Cindy Lloyd and Kathy McFarland who powered through a last-minute petition drive against the sale. Smith and Lachmund alone gathered hundreds of signatures in one week's time.

Then came the Mission Trail Park Consortium, with members too numerous to mention, who wrestled with the task of finding a use for the house and a plan for the park.

In particular, the Flanders Mansion arm of that group worked hard to prove that the house was as beautiful inside as it was outside.

Special mention should go to Enid Sales, and to architect Roger Larson and Kent Seavey for their hard work on the state grant and historical registry. Also to architect Russell Gifford, who along with Larson, proved that the diagnosis that the house was falling down was wrong.

All in all, they taught us that the answer to local politics should never be, "Frankly my dear, I don't give a damn."

Social contract

Dear Editor:

I would like to commend you for your courage and honesty in reporting the confrontation between National Writer's Union Local 7 and Susan Bock, editor of Monterey Life magazine, during this year's Writer's Jamboree. I was present in the room at La Playa Hotel on Saturday, Nov. 19th, when Ray March, Steve Turner, Robert Sward and other members of the union politely but persistently questioned each panel member regarding what rights they buy from writers when they purchase stories, what limits on copyright and editing they exercise and how they do or do not treat their writers with respect. In every case Susan Bock, the Monterey Life editor, stonewalled the questions, refusing to comment other than to say that she wanted to close the issue, and that if writers were concerned about their rights they should make clear what they are selling when they submit their stories.

Thank God for the other editors on the panel; especially Jonathan Drake of Pacific/-Prelude, who saved the day with his candid and forthright answers. I do think it was interesting that the Monterey Life editor agreed

Caltrans feels it will get coastal agency OK

By DAVID LELAND

CALTRANS OFFICIALS this week appeared optimistic that any differences between Caltrans and the Coastal Commission staff could be worked out by the Dec. 15 Coastal Commission meeting in San Francisco.

Last week the Coastal Commission staff attached eight conditions to Caltrans' new application for the $26 million Hatton Canyon Freeway project, which is scheduled for consideration at next week's meeting.

There had been some doubt as to Caltrans' reaction. The agency had submitted the new application after the coastal staff found fault with its application filed last summer.

"I'm not pessimistic at all," said Tom Pollock, Caltrans district director. "I'm hopeful that, with some work, we can be substantially in agreement before the 15th."

The hearing will take place at 10 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 15 at the Cathedral Hill Hotel in San Francisco.

Pollock said that if the Hatton Canyon Freeway project is approved by the Coastal Commission on Dec. 15, a modified version of the environmental impact statement will be sent to the Federal Highway Administration later this month.

If all goes according to schedule, Pollock said, the EIS should be available for a 30-day circulation period by the end of January.

At the end of that time, the FHA has the option of approving the application.

Meanwhile, Pollock added that funding is still intact for the project, even though a large number of requirements and delays have moved construction back until the spring of 1991.

Caltrans had been aiming for a start-up date in 1990 to begin work on the project, which has been 30 years in the making.

The year's delay could add $1 million to the cost of the project, which only two years ago was estimated at $25 million, according to Ken Jones, project engineer.

OF THE eight conditions attached to the application, Caltrans took issue with only half of them, Pollock said.

The conditions included visual impacts, bicycle access, natural habitat, recreational traffic measures, flood hazard measures, speed limits, left-turn requirements and residential street protection.

"We are trying to protect our responsibility as the state transportation agency when it concerns safety," said Pollock, referring to objections made by the Coastal Commission staff.

Objections by Caltrans concerned the following conditions attached to the application:

· Recreational traffic measures.

The Coastal Commission staff had proposed that Caltrans take the lead with several federal, state and local agencies to study the needs of Big Sur-bound traffic.

Pollock said Caltrans believes that the Monterey County Traffic Commission should be part of that study team, along with the U.S. Forest Service, state Parks Department and the Big Sur Multi-Agency Council.

He added that the local coastal plan frowns on metering traffic counts, and that action would require legislation.

"We need a better understanding of what the Coastal Commission staff would consider accepting," he said.

Pollock added that the six-month time limit attached to the condition is also unrealistic, especially when it will take about 18 months to secure the proper permits to begin work.

· Lower speeds.

The Coastal Comission staff had suggested that Caltrans design the freeway south of Carmel Valley Road for a maximum speed 10 mph slower (45 mph) than the rest of the freeway.

"We do not have the authority to lower speed limits," Pollock said.

Instead, he said, he wants to work further with the Coastal Commission staff to make sure that speed limits are within reason.

Coastal planners recommend that Caltrans redesign and reduce the length of the proposed left-turn lane onto Oliver Road from the bridge crossing the Carmel River.

Pollock said he has concerns "about the precedent of directing the department" about the requirements of left-turn lanes.

· Residential street protection.

Under this condition, Caltrans must prepare an analysis of the effect of traffic on Carpenter Street and other streets in Carmel.

Pollock said he felt it was a good idea to work with the city and county in relationship to Carpenter Street, but other Carmel streets would not be affected by the freeway.

"We feel basically that the highway will have very little impact on Carmel streets," he said, adding that cars that currently travel through Carmel dodging signals will instead stay on the freeway.

Council OKs transient rental law, lawsuits threatened

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council charged full speed ahead Dec. 6 and unanimously put the final stamp of approval on an ordinance that outlaws home rentals for 30 days or less in the town's residential district.

The council took the action despite warnings from three real estate agencies that the ordinance will be tested in court and involve the city in more litigation. The agencies — San Carlos Agency, Carmel Realty and Vintage Realty — manage properties for homeowners who rent their second homes for a month or less.

The ordinance officially become law 30 days after Tuesday's council meeting.

Numerous letters on the issue have poured into city hall promoting or opposing the ordinance.

The new code has already received the attention of the news media in many of the larger cities in California where affected homeowners and visitors who rent homes on vacation live.

The threat of litigation, both against the city and against individual councilmembers, caused some councilmembers jitters but no reduction in determination to approve the law.

"The comments we hear when going around town is 'We're behind you.' The only thing that bothers me is I would rather have you beside us when we get to court," Councilmember Ken White joked to the audience.

Later, a show of hands by audience members for or against the ordinance demonstrated that about three-quarters were in favor of the council's actions.

The city had developed two other transient rental ordinances which were overturned by the court in 1981. The San Carlos Agency was also a major litigant against the city in those cases.

Bruce Britton of San Carlos Agency tried once again to convince the council to change the ordinance from restricting visitors for 30 days or less to seven days or less.

"Frankly, we have had more problems with our rentals on a long-term basis," Britton said. "The motivation for the people (who rent short-term), is not to make money. In fact, they don't make money, you actually make more with a long-term rental. But they want to be able to be here and be a part of Carmel, Many are going to retire here."

If they rent the home long term they would not be able to use the house themselves, he explained.

The problems arose from people who rent their homes for a weekend or overnight, rather than for the longer monthly or twoweek terms, he said.

"We don't do that, but I know that happens here." Britton said.

Many of the people who rent the agency's homes for more than a week come back year after year. Britton said, and that people who rent a home for more than a week are the type of tourists the city wants to attract.

"They are families, very stable, they are not here to party," Britton said.

"You are my friends and neighbors, I don't want to sue anyone," he pleaded.

Anthony Lombardo, attorney for the agencies and homeowners who oppose the ordinance, stated after the vote that they probably would not try to file in court until the city attempts to enforce the law.

To the council, Lombardo said "I am probably the least popular person in this room, though today I found myself the champion of property rights throughout the state of California."

Holiday deadlines

For Dec. 20 edition of Carmel Pine Cone

Editorial Noon Wednesday, Dec. 14

For Dec. 23 issue of Carmel Pine Cone

The Carmel Pine Cone will be distributed early on two occasions for the holiday season: Tuesday, Dec. 20 and Friday, Dec. 23. After the Dec. 23 issue there will not be an issue until Thursday, Jan. 5, 1989. Due dates remain the same for the Jan. 5 issue: Friday, Dec. 30.

Lombardo argued that the law was virtually the same as the one overturned in 1981.

His clients, he said, do not rent homes for one or two nights, they screen the tenants, require security deposits and allow no more than one family at a time.

Some residents spoke to encourage and support the council's forthcoming decision.

Francis "Skip" Lloyd, speaking for the Carmel Residents Association, told the council "We have heard quite a bit of favorable feedback about this ordinance. We support you."

For the Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association, Barry Smith stated that they had had an "overwhelming response in support" of the ordinance.

Others spoke in favor of the ordinance, citing the desire to know one's neighbors and the feeling of community that is lost when homes are used as rentals and the council said it had received many letters urging approval of the law.

"It is basically a land use issue," Councilmember Jim Wright said before the unanimous vote.

In other agenda items, the council:

• "Tabled," or dismissed, an ordinance that would require the installation of residential sprinklers in new homes or when a major remodel is to be done.

• Denied an appeal by the Village Corner Restaurant of a planning commission decision that prevents owner Bob Carlisle from building a glass solarium over the outdoor patio.

• Approved "housekeeping" changes on an ordinance concerning movie making in Carmel. Chief Jack McGilvery told the council that most requests for filming were so minor that no one even knew when the crews were here. Permits for major film work would come to the council.

• Authorized Mayor Jean Grace or alternate Wright to attend the Coastal Commission Hatton Canyon Freeway hearing in San Francisco Dec. 15. The council also listened to comments from opponents of the freeway.

CRA accepting nomination for Citizen of Year

THE CARMEL Residents Association will have more than city ordinances and parking problems on its agenda for next year.

The organization plans to start 1989 off on a positive note with the selection of a person to be honored as Citizen of the Year.

The organization is taking nominations for the new award and is looking for people who "during the past year or years have done an outstanding job of promoting the objective of ordinance 96."

Ordinance 96 is the portion of the zoning code that states Carmel is "primarily, essentially and predominantly a residential city." The full text hangs in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The nominee can live in Carmel or within its sphere of influence.

Nominees will also be judged by whether their activities conform to CRA's objectives, namely

The winner of the award will be annouced at a party from 3 to 5 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 22 at the Carmel Scout House. Tickets are $5 per person and the proceeds will be used to offset the cost of the party and winner's plaque.

Nomination should be submitted by Jan. 5 to Citizen of the Year Selection Committee, P.O. Box 13, Carmel, CA 93921.

Eastwood to get NAACP award

WHILE NOTED by some for his tough-guy image, the NAACP sees Clint Eastwood as a man who has not let color influence his decisions.

With that in mind, the NAACP will honor Eastwood with its Dedication to Excellence award this Saturday, Dec. 10, at the Wiltern Theater in Los Angeles during its 21st Annual Image Awards.

The celebration will be broadcast at 11:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 14 on NBC.

The honorary award is given for using blacks and other minorities in other than stereotypical roles in radio, flim, television, recording and sports.

"He has used blacks in all areas of film over the course of his career," said Regina Jones. NAACP spokesperson. "He's gone the extra yard and called an actor an actor."

Most recently Eastwood used a predominantly black cast in his film Bird, which profiled the life of legendary sax-ophonist Charlie "Yardbird" Parker.

"It seems like the natural thing to do not to keep people in a stereotypical role," said Eastwood in a telephone interview Tuesday from his production office in Burbank. "It's important both on and off the camera."

Eastwood said that for many years Hollywood practiced "nepotism" in both casting stars and selecting movie scripts to produce.

"But that's all changed now," he said.
"And I say more power to it."

Supes delay decision on funding of libraries

By DAVID LELAND

COUNTY SUPERVISORS granted the Carmel library a 60-day reprieve Tuesday when they approved an extended public comment period on the cancellation of library service contracts.

A county report released last week recommended terminating library service contracts with Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey and Salinas, which have been in effect since 1972.

Such a move would be costly to Carmel, to the tune of $92,836, or 21.5 percent of its annual budget.

The county library's operating budget for 1988-89 is $2.8 million. Of that, $471,251 or 17 percent is scheduled to be paid to the four cities in contract payments.

And while the majority of the testimony during the half-hour meeting centered on the surprise of such cuts, 1st District Supervisor Marc Del Piero said the board was well aware of the possibility of contract cancellation.

"It has not been sudden," he said. "It was thoroughly discussed during our budget hearings last July."

But for county resident Cathie Uchivama, the news came as a devastating blow.

She accused the board of "reducing the continuing education and enlightenment of the public."

She also disagreed with the county staff's proposal of spreading the money equally among the county's libraries.

"You don't decrease one service to give to the other to make them all mediocre," she said. "We will not have the same sort of service as we have had in the past."

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman agreed.

"We don't have it (equalization) in other services; that perturbs me," she said, adding that sheriff's deputies are dispatched to highcrime areas. "We don't spend money equally, we put it where the service is required."

County resident Virginia Moore said that "We have a uniquely wonderful system working right now — it's one of a kind."

Indeed, Monterey and Santa Cruz counties are the only two jurisdicitions in the state to operate on a contract basis with city libraries.

Strasser Kauffman said that puts Monterey in the forefront.

"We may not be out of step — we may be ahead," she said.

Other groups fighting cancellation included the Mayor's Select Committee, city managers from the four cities and the peninsula chapter of the League of Women Voters.

BUT DEL Piero said that the current situation is simple inequitable.

"There is a disproportionate system that exists here," he said.

He said while the system worked when introduced in 1972, after the passage of Proposition 13 in 1978, county revenue fell but the contracts remained.

Under the current arrangement, property taxes finance much of the library service contract money, but the four cities benefiting don't contribute to that coffer, Del Piero

Instead, each city draws out of its general fund, which, he said, is unfair to the remainder of the county.

"The money (for library services), comes from the residents of the unincorporated areas of the county," he said. "And the eight remaining cities."

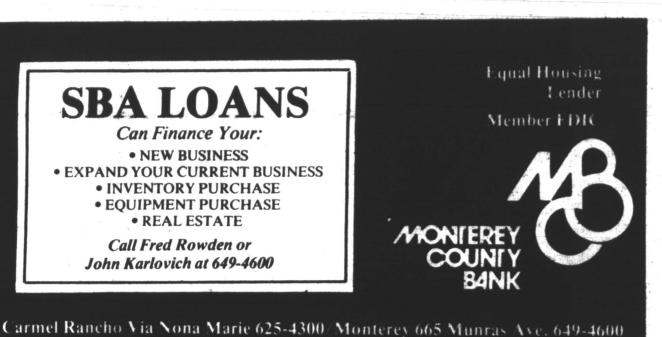

Indeed, a report issued by the county said that with 4,990 residents and 9,451 registered borrowers, library services works out to $35.90 per capita.

That figure is quite high when compared to the county average of $10.76 per capita.

The Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel services residents from Carmel Point, Carmel Hills, Carmel Woods and other county residents.

With less state funding for its mandated programs, the county is searching for ways in which to trim back on programs.

Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas perhaps best set the board's tone for the hearings when he said, "We have homeless and hungry out there and we are taking money away to support the libraries."

The new Rapid Access processing actually meets or exceeds the performance and reliability of conventional processing. Additionally, our inspectors reject nearly ten times as many prints as the competition, assuring the highest quality prints every

Q: What if I'm not in a big hurry?

Some of our customers prefer to save a dollar on each roll by picking their prints up the following day. But most like to treat themselves by dropping their film off and strolling through the beautiful Carmel Plaza, enjoying themselves either shopping or dining. Or, go back to work and come back on their next break to pick up their beautiful prints. The point is that you don't have to wait to see your precious memories.

Q: Why do you do the 4"x6" jumbo prints?

Our customers have found that when they compare their valuable photos done as 3"x5" to the larger 4"x6", over 95% of them prefer the bigger, bolder, more beautiful 4"x6" prints!

Water district set to OK Phase III rationing plan

By NANCY HILLS

WITH THE Monterey Peninsula down to less than one-half its usable water storage, both rationing and rain will be on the minds of Monterey Peninsula residents come Jan. 1.

On Dec. 12, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board is scheduled to approve its Phase III rationing plan along with a resolution that activates rationing Jan. 1, 1989.

The plan mandates district water users to reduce water consumption 20 percent from the billing period that corresponds to 12 months prior to the rationing period.

The water board will meet at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Dec. 12 in Monterey City Council

To complete its rationing program, the board must also resolve many remaining policy issues in conjunction with rationing.

Those issues include the surcharge the district will add to water bills to pay for administration of the rationing program, the penalty for violators, and the treatment of different classes of water customers.

It must also have a first reading on an ordinance to establish an appeals and variance

But time is running out for equivocating about details.

"Water storage is down to below 17,000 acre feet which is less than one-half our usable water storage," water district general manager Bruce Buel stated. "We are getting about 10 acre feet per day at Los Padres Dam but we are using about 20 acre feet a day. So despite recent storms, we are still 'mining' our water resources."

A resource is "mined" when the rate of consumption exceeds replacement.

Water storage refers to the Carmel River aquifer, two small dams on the river and the Seaside aquifer.

Buel explained that last water year — Oct. 1 1987 to Sept. 30, 1988 — the district used about 21,000 acre feet of water in total. That includes the use of private pumpers and all water companies.

If rainfall is the same as the last water year, it is possible that water demand will not be met during the upcoming summer months.

The next water year could begin with water cent below normal demand.

With hopes of a break in dry weather pat tern the district board is mandating the 20 percent cutback first before it goes to a stricter phase, such as 40 percent ration.

The peninsula will have to get substantially more rain than it received last year to avoid going into a stricter rationing phase. How much more will depend upon the rainfall patterns and runoff.

As WRITTEN, the ordinance mandates that businesses and residences within the district must reduce their water consumption by 20 percent from the same billing period 12 months previous.

If the residence is unable to reduce consumption by 20 percent, the staff will compare its water use with a basic per-person allotment.

In detached homes, each person will be allowed 82 gallons per day. If the house in occupied by one person, the water connection will be permitted 122 gallons per day.

In multi-family dwellings, apartments and condominiums, each person can use 46 gallons per day if more than one person occupies the dwelling. If there is only one resident, he or she is allowed 68 gallons per day.

Issues the board still needs to vote on include:

• The percentage of a water bill the district will collect to pay for implementing the rationing plan.

The staff had suggested a 4 percent sursupplies depleted to the point of 60 to 70 per- charge, which would raise about $500,000 in a year, but public protests at the board's last meeting prompted them to ask staff to review what programs could be cut.

Implementation and administration of the complex rationing program "could range from $250,000 to $500,000," which would require a surcharge of 2 to 4 percent respectively, a water district staff report states. The board should not reduce the surcharge to less than 2.6 percent, the report adds.

The staff note also states that reducing the surcharge any lower could result in a poorly administrated and poorly enforced program. The district could not properly educate the public, it continues, and points out that the surcharge will only last as long as it is needed. It must be terminated when the program is no longer in need of funding.

The surcharge is to keep track of water consumption in 42,000 residences, write a new program for California-Amercian Water Co.'s computer, identify violators, notification after first and second violations, enforce the penalties, process variances and appeals.

The fixed costs include a $33,000 postcard survey to establish the number of residents per household and $50,000 for computer programming and reporting.

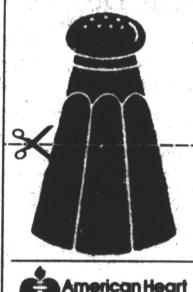

Staffing, office rental, overhead and a contingency fund are more discretionary. The 4-percent surcharge would pay for a program manager at $40,000 for one year, two clerical assistants totaling $34,000, also for one year, and $84,000 for four field representatives for a year.

with the others that a magazine is like a club and the bonds of trust created between writers, artists and editors is vital to a magazine's survival. No matter how much money is pumped into a publication, a magazine can only be as good as the writers and editors who co-create it. When the delicate social contract between them is violated, the whole community suffers.

I can only hope that Monterey Life will have enough integrity to meet this challenge directly. Dozens of its former writers are protesting the magazine's current copyright policy regarding reprints. They only ask that Monterey Life treat its writers and other artists with the dignity and respect to which they are entitled. They will put up with lousy pay, but not with outright rip-off of their material. At least, that's what I heard them saying at the "Writing for Love and Money" seminar.

Bureaucratic nightmare

Dear Editor:

Having attended meetings of the Monterey Peninsula water board on two occasions earlier this year, I was dumbfounded by a board bogged down in bureaucracy. The board members were in total deference to the thinking of their own staff which seemed to me more concerned about perpetuating their own welfare than providing water.

Somehow or other the water board staff has managed to convince the water board members of its reliability. No wonder we will have rationing.

What has impressed me most in recent news articles about the water shortage is the good sense of the public. It has made several suggestions for various practical and low-cost water projects which would eliminate the need for rationing altogether this year and for future droughts, regardless of whether or not a new dam is built.

The amazing thing is that the water board has not risen about a bureaucratic nightmare centered on building a dam in order to get around the need for rationing. It sees no need to take action on any of the reasonable ideas presented by well-informed members of the public and by water experts representing the public. The mystery is why not.

Rufus R. "Rusty" Gates Carmel

Novel solution

Dear Editor:

I sent a copy of your front page article on water rationing to my son who lives in Baton Rouge, La. He is an avid golfer and has played most of the courses around here on his frequent visits.

He suggested that the golf courses should discontinue watering the first 100 yards of fairway on each hole because almost all golfers drive the ball further than that on their first shot. He also said that they might consider not watering all or part of the roughs.

I don't know how much water this would save but I bet it would be very substantial. Possibly enough to avoid rationing.

Jean Barnett Pebble Beach

Correcting errors

Dear Editor:

In your Nov. 24 issue of the Pine Cone, you published a letter by Robert Greenwood which contained several misleading and incorrect statements of fact.

Mr. Greenwood is a registered California geologist and one would presume would have done a better job investigating the facts before submitting a letter commenting on water use by various golf courses.

Had Mr. Greenwood done a more thorough investigation of the water use requirements for various golf courses, he would have discovered that there is no correlation between the water use required by golf courses in the Del Monte Forest (1.76 acre feet, per acre, per year), and that required by golf courses and other agricultural pursuits in Carmel Valley (over 3 acre feet, per acre, per year), based on differing climatic and soil conditions.

I hope that this letter will correct any misunderstandings that Mr. Greenwood may have left with your readers regarding the amount of water necessary for turf cultivation or other agricultural uses in Carmel

Time for priorities

Dear Editor:

Monterey-Salinas Transit

899-2555 or 424-7695

I wish to add my unuttered murmur to the Voice of the People protesting the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway in Carmel.

Like it or not, ANY freeway built today will be overloaded in 20 years.

In one breath we bemoan the desecration of the South American forests, in the next we are casually planning to slaughter 10,000 trees in our home area for the sake of two more lanes on three miles of highway. Those two lanes, plus appropriate interchanges, could be added to existing Highway 1 at far less cost. Or find another solution.

It is time for priorities. Moving traffic does not supersede the health of the planet in my worm's eye view: We can only start at home to squelch the idiocy that is known to be ruining our environment.

What are our public officials doing to prevent the destruction of our 10,000 trees and their attendant ecology? They are well paid to be the stewards of this land. I call on them to do their jobs. Caltrans is not answerable to

It need hardly be said that Eastwood's spectacular entrance to produce and direct Bird will be remembered as a piece of art.

As the director, Eastwood applied the lightness of the cool in filming the life of jazz musician Charlie Parker, never losing sight of the sensitivity of the man, and the awareness of his music.

The strength of Bird will depend, to an extent that is hardly appreciated, on the utter convictions of those who dare witness romanticism, understanding, existence and the intriguing community of jazz music from the legendary Charlie "YardBird" Parker.

Concomitantly, jazz has been the one public arena in American life in which true brotherhood asserted itself. No matter how crooked the path, queer the perspective, that basic factor was there.

Being humans, we all have our favorite haunts, but few participate in the whole.

Make Xmas shopping fun

To some of us, Christmas shopping is a time-consuming chore, filled with uncertainty and discomfort. What can I possible get for Aunt Matilda, who still thinks the spiral cord on a telephone is a modern phenomenon, and who refuses to join the 20th century? And Grandpa, who has everything he could possible want, and even some things he doesn't want, like high blood pressure and a high cholesterol count (no easy gifts of chocolates or cookies for him!) Well, I may not have solutions to these annually recurring perplexities, but at least you can enjoy the holiday shopping experience more if you'll combine it with local festivities.

A Thurber Carnival

WHO SAYS you can't keep the arts alive at a small school with a low budget? Not only did Carmel High's drama program lose its instructor last year, many of its star performers graduated as well.

No one was certain what kind of student interest new instructor Victoria Gilbert would find as she started from scratch this year, but, happily, she was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm. As a result, a new drama program is already going strong. The first show, James Thurber's A Thurber Carnival, begins, Friday, Dec. 9th.

Miss Gilbert's goal is to have beginning and advanced sections where the more experienced students can help train the less experienced ones, creating a continuous core of accomplished students in the program. There are currently 37 students enrolled in the drama class and approximately 30 more students involved with the drama club and the production itself. Auditions for the productions are open to the entire student body. Miss Gilbert hopes to be able to produce musicals someday. And although the budget and facilities are limited but "workable," the new drama program may soon outgrow them.

The new drama program is designed to be educational. It will build an appreciation of the arts as well as the discipline and commitment required to make a show successful. So far, the students have been working very hard but having a lot of fun in the process.

There are 12 members of the A Thurber Carnvial cast and many others working behind the scenes. Each actor plays multiple roles, an experience which will help them develop versatility and a "sense of ensemble." The play, really a series of comic sketches, is essentially light, a safer and simpler choice for this group's first production. It is performed in a relaxed atmosphere with a mixed media approach.

In this work, Thurber's dry humor is centered on stereotypes and relationships, very real elements of the high school experience. Perhaps next spring will see the production of something a little heavier. Glass Menagerie and Under Milkwood are among the pieces under consideration.

What this promising program needs now is the support of the community. Come see Carmel High's presentation of A Thurber Carnival on Dec. 9th, 10th, or 15th at 8:30 p.m. in the school's Pocket Playhouse (aka Room 2). Tickets are $3 at the door.

'Future of Art' discussed

Artist Ed Moody, synthetic realist painter, will present a lecture and slide presentation titled "The Future of Art." Moody's presentation is the first in a free lecture series presented by the Pacific Grove Art Center at its headquarters, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove.

The guest lecturer will discuss the present and future roles of fine artists in society. Moody's work, deeply rooted in symbology, expresses nature's struggle against the high tech world. It will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 8, For details, call 375-2208.

The City of Pacific Grove sponsors a Christmas decoration display contest with numerous categories ranging from whole neighborhoods to single window displays. Call the city at 373-1576 for details, but act quickly — the deadline for filing applications is Friday, Dec. 9. I'm sure the Pacific Grove merchants would welcome your business while you're in the area viewing these unique contest displays.

While you're shopping in Pacific Grove, stop by Pacific Grove Plaza at 620 Lighthouse Ave. on Dec. 10, 11, 17 or 18 from noon to 5 p.m., where the Jaycees are sponsoring photo sessions with Santa. Also, Santa will be happy to visit your party for $20 per hour. All proceeds will be used to send some underprivileged persons on a Christmas shopping spree in PG.

The American Tin Cannery has quite a lineup starting with a one-half hour program by the USAF choir in the main mall Friday. Dec. 9 at 7:30 p.m. The second annual "Kids Night to Shop" occurs on the 16th; if you're 12 or under, bring a can of food (distributed to needy families through the Salvation Army), and you'll be eligible to participate in a raffle or mystery gifts donated by the mall merchants. Santa will be on hand from 6 to 9 p.m. to assist with the raffle and to hand out goodies of his own, and the Carmel Carolers will join the festivities.

Del Monte Shopping Center has a "Santa's Castle" next to House of Fabrics open through Christmas eve, where Santa is available for photos and will hand out The Night Before Christmas illustrated by Shirley Holt.

On the 10th and 11th, KWAV is bringing Santa Paws to pose for photos with our family pets (my cat is very excited about Christmas and still believes reindeer can fly). This will be located between Macy's and Mervyns, outside Victoria's Secret, and the donations will go to the SPCA.

The Monterey and Carmel Board of Realtors is sponsoring a cantree at the Del Monte Center on the 17th, with distribution through the Salvation Army. Fort Ord Army personnel commence erecting the tree at 10 a.m.; building will continue all day as cans are added from donating shoppers. Enjoy holiday carolers periodically through Christmas Eve at the center as well.

Hope you didn't miss The Barnyard's annual Weinachtsmarkt on Dec. 6 (it's always on Dec. 6; if you missed it this year, make note for next year). There were jugglers and carolers, a puppet theater and choirs; the festivities concluded at 5:15 when St. Nicholas arrived on a white horse and lit the tree. Delightful Christmas music can be enjoyed at the Barnyard periodically through Christmas Eve, including orchestral arrangements, flugelhornsmand carolers.

Santa will be at the Crossroads for photos from noon to 4 p.m. every weekend (he really gets around the peninsula, doesn't he?); the Calvary Chapel Choir appears in the Lobos Lane area on the 11th from 2 to 4 p.m. and the Dickens Group of strolling carolers will inspire you from 1 to 3 p.m. on the 14th and 23rd; from 2 to 4 p.m. on the 17th and 20th, and from noon to 2 p.m. on the 22nd. For additional event information, call The Crossroads at 625-4106.

Enjoy!

Holiday festivities begin

EVEN BEFORE the original and sophisticated invitations went into the mail, it was being touted as "the party of the year" — the first Crystal Ball for Hospice. It proved to be true.

Ladies did, indeed, arrive dressed in their finest silver, white or black gowns and the gentlemen, mostly in black tie, but a few honored the occasion with white tie and tails. The beautiful people sipped Monterey Vineyard Champagne in a Viennese forest of white trees while gentle music of The Rose Ouartette filled the air of the Serra Ballroom. Mr. William Durney was seen wearing an Austrian medal in honor of the evening and he was disappointed that the expected European visitors did not attend.

It was difficult to guide the 189 guests next door to be awed by the beautiful decoration before sitting down for dinner.

This was no mere dinner-dance, it was a magical journey back into the romantic days of Old Vienna. Glitter and glamour and Old World-style charm reigned under the fixed gaze of the Habsburg Court in a Royal Box placed above the ballroom floor. It was just as well to have the mute royalty stationed there as the real live Archduke and Archduchess Geza Von Habsburn were unable to attend due to a tragic death in the family. They did request that they be invited again

Viennese waltzes and grand opera created the magic carpet to the past in a ballroom encased in white trees and tumbleweed chandeliers. The tumbleweeds were lovingly gathered in Soledad, sprayed with white paint and decked with white lights to create the fantasy fairyland feeling. The aura was glamorous insulation against the modern world, albeit for one unforgettable evening only.

Opera was cought by the talents of Rosemary Scott, Janice Geever, Aldo Dal Ponte and Benjamin Goldman. The waltzes were performed by the John Daly Orchestra. Just as popular were the songs by David Rupert's MP Choral Society and Rev. H.H. Lusk's Bethel Mission Baptist Church Choir. The highlight was the chanting and prayers as Judith Goldman lighted the first Chanukah Candle in the Menorah.

In between dance sets the omniferous entertainment included the removal of Jindo Furs by seven models to reveal gowns by Touche. Commentator Artie Early once wittily encouraged a model "to wiggle the tiers." (Not tears, but tiers on a beaded skirt.)

Although many people gave many volunteers hours, it does take two dynamos like Mrs. F. Lee Early Jr. and Mr. James M. Josoff to keep the ball waltzing in three/quarter time. Artie and Jim proved to be the perfect team to create the proper tempo in a stunning setting for "the party of the year."

To let people know what they can expect in the future, Jim presented the first Crystal Ball Volunteer-of-the-Year Award to Rose Little.

As you search for time to install your tree and "deck your own halls," think of the 30 gorgeous trees embellished with individually designed, handcrafted ornaments that filled the Monterey Room at the fairgrounds the first four days of this month.

Of course, it took scores of volunteers around 100,000 hours to create the sight that dazzled all who came to Festival of Trees. A warm seasonal welcome was extended to all visitors by tea, coffee and some 70,000 homebaked cookies.

Cardinal Moving Co. delivered the trees to the 30 professionals and businesses on Monday. So, if you did not go out to see them arranged together you will have quite a chore tracking them down, although it would be worth the time and effort. Just be sure not to miss the Festival of Trees next year when it comes of age with the 21st year of this truly spectacular event.

The Jesters Country Store was jam-packed with handcrafted items and chairperson Patricia Totten thoughtfully set up tbles for shopping for "children only." The Museum Shop offered selected gift items with Frances Golden there to assist.

The MP Museum of Art reminds us that the Christmas season is upon us when the Champagne Gala Reception is given as a preview opening for Festival of Trees. Betty Rodden arranged the special party as well as the Sunday Brunch. Dolores Johnson took silent auction bids for the 62 miniatures donated by local artists that went to the highest bidder at the live auction at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, which was the climax of the festival.

Pearl Carey made certain that everyone was welcomed after Jean Snow greeted them at the door. Many thanks to to the patient general chair Weegie Leaver and her assistant Ginny Morrall. Vesta Redmond had charge of The Doll that was auctioned and Anita Seibel did the 6-foot potpourri tree. Jim McCord did a masterful staging job of "Deck The Halls" as it was called this year.

Certain trees caught the eye: Dr. Harold L. Compton's was filled with soft, appealing animals; Fremont Bank Mortgage brought back "Echos of the Past"; replicas of PG's Victorian structures were done for Martine B&B Inn with the title "Victorian Memories." The latter was seen again by visitors on the PG Christmas-At-The-Inns tour on Tuesday evening.

As BEFITTING the season, Monterey Peninsula Voluntary Services gave generously to two local organizations at its last meeting. Checks for $9,877 (proceeds from MPVS' Fall Sale), were presented to Marilyn Victorine (director of Gateway Center), and to Dorothy O'Connor (director of Family Service Agency). The gifts were presented by vice president Sally Fargo (Fall Sale chairperson) and president Edan Denholm.

Certificate of Life Membership was given to Virginia Stanton who joined back in 1944 during WWH. Others, who joined in 1963, and are eligible for Life Memberships are Isabell McClean, Bee Martin and Claire Fitzhugh.

VP Olga Scheffler presented Edan Denholm with a gift of appreciation and a large orchid plant for her two-year dedication to the group.

The devotion of the 30 members of MPVS is awesome. They run a full-time thrift shop in Seaside to raise funds to help fill local community needs. They have given $70,000 back to the community so far this year. They anticipate thrift shop sales to top a record $100,000 in 1988.

THAT POPULAR couple, Tom and Camilla May, gave their annual Christmas Open House in their Carmel home for their many friends. A lilac wreath greeted guests at the front door. Inside decorations were everywhere. A Lilac colored tree with lilac ornaments, elves, angels and pine cones. Traditional Christmas hors d'oeuvres were served to all.

HOLIDAY TREES were lighted all over the MP for various causes. At the American Tin Cannery Outlet Center in Pacific Grove the American Cancer Society has "A Remembrance Tree" that was switched on by Rebekah Sepulveda (leukemia patient), as the Calvary Choral Group sang.

"The Spirit of Christmas Toy Drive" began in the Monterey Plaza Hotel Lobby with more than 200 toys brought to be distributed by Family Resource Center.

The 20-foot tree was set ablaze with lights and the Robert Louis Stevenson Choir led by Rob Klevan sang seasonal songs. Santa was there to hear what the youngsters had to say.

Sen. Henry Mello came and mayors present were Dan Albert, Morris Fisher, George Takahashi, Robert Franco and Russ Jefferies of Salinas.

Toys will be received through the 16th, so drop those toys off at the Monterey Plaza and help make all the little ones happy this Christmas.

"Tree of Life," a tradition with Hospice, is set atop the Monterey Sheraton ablaze with lights donated in memory of individuals. Sponsors are The Sheraton, KWAV Radio, KMST-TV, and Monterey Rotary. "All proceeds got to the Patient Care Fund," says Robert Brower, Hospice board chairperson.

The Barnyard treated kids with a St. Nicholas Day with a European-style "Weihnachtsmarkt" — Feast Day of St. Nicholas. St. Nick galloped in on a white horse and, as if by magic, a tree bursts into color as he waved his wand. Then, on a golden throne, he greeted children one by one.

DATES FOR your holiday calendar: the Jesters Christmas Jolly is an evening not to missed. Sunday, Dec. 11th 6-10 p.m. at the Monterey Plaza Hotel Balfroom with dancing to the music of the Do Do Wah Street Irregulars. Only $20. Call the Museum of Art NOW and grab a mask and have a jolly time with those fun-loving Jesters.

Doc's Cannery Row Lab is recreated and you go from there on your own make-believe "dive expedition" into the Sea of Cortez.

A time to renew

O. MY aunt died recently leaving my 75-year-old uncle to whom she had been married for 53 years alone in the home they had owned for over 40 years. I am his nearest relative but live in San Francisco. When I visited him, two months after the funeral, he still seemed quite depressed, had lost weight and apparently rarely left the house. These impressions were all confirmed by the neighbors who say my uncle has turned down all invitations to socialize. I plan to visit my uncle again in about two weeks and would appreciate any advice you

とうし、へいでは大きないとの時からませて、一定対象からな

A. THIS is a very difficult time for your uncle and I can relate to his situation since I recently had a good friend and neighbor go through a similar period of trial. Your letter doesn't give any information as to your uncle's prior work, hobbies or religious preference, but these are three possible areas where his interest in life could be renewed. Contact with former employers, business associates, fellow hobbyists or church groups could help bring your uncle out of his shell. You might take him to the nearest nutrition site, which in your uncle's case would be operated by the Alliance on Aging. There he would receive a hot noon time meal for a minimal donation, a chance to socialize with others in his age bracket and, if asked for, direction to much more help from the excellent counseling service provided by the Alliance on Aging. I don't know your uncle, but if he is anything like my good friend, he is proud, self-reliant, stubborn and slightly suspicious of the motives of neighboring widows.

O. MY mother who is 88 and my aunt who is 83 live together in mother's home. The sisters get along well and the only problem they have stems from mother's failing eyesight. She can no longer read and expects my aunt to read aloud the newspaper and whatever book or magazine she happens to be reading. I feel sorry for my aunt because I know the constant reading aloud tires her and intrudes on her private time. Is there any agency that provides readers? I'm sure my aunt would be happy to pay a modest fee.

T.M., Carmel Valley

A. DID you know that "Talking Books" are available at your local library? These are very good published books usually recorded by an actor. There are many selections to choose from and equipment to play the recordings is available, all at no cost. Perhaps with these recordings your aunt's aloud reading could be reduced to the morning newspaper.

Q. I am over age 65, receive Social Security benefits, am enrolled in Part A of Medicare, but rejected Part B since I have this protection without Medicare. With the passage of the Medicare Catastrophic Protection Act, I now find that next year my wife and I will pay $1,600 additional income tax to help finance a program I do not need or want and by 1993 that amount will rise to $2,100. To top it off, the legislation does not provide long-term nursing home care which is one area where I am not protected. I called the Social Security office and asked to withdraw from Part A and was told this could not be done and even if an eligible person did not sign up at age 65, he would still be liable for the additional income tax. Then to add insult to injury, this tax cannot be deducted as a medical expense. Who says we don't have socialized medicine? J.G., Carmel

A. WOW! What can I say other than to suggest you lobby your congressman? It seems as though someone always falls through the cracks of any new legislation. I suspect the writer to be either retired military or someone who was employed, for example, by a large medical corporation which, as a retirement benefit, takes care of most of his medical needs. There is some relief in the act for retired federal employees since, generally, their retirement is fully taxable, while Social Security benefits are not. Rep. Anthony C. Beilenson seems to think that no legislation would have been better than what passed since the act does not provide coverage whatsoever for long term nursing home or home health care. He also fears that the high cost of this act will preclude passage of substantive nursing home or home health care legislation in the near future.

DONATIONS NEEDED FOR POOR OF CABO SAN LUCAS

Donations of toys, ropes, balls, bats, blankets, shoes, musical instruments, radios and other items will be needed this holiday season for the poor of Cabo San Lucas in Mexico.

With that in mind, Carmel Valley resident Ammi Brooks will be leaving on a trip to Mexico Saturday, Dec. 17 to deliver the toys and medical supplies and will meet up with fellow valley resident Garielle Esperanza, who has been travelling to and from Cabo San Lucas with supplies for the past year.

Brooks will be taking donations from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11 at the home of John Chappell, 36434 Burch Place (Mission Fields). In addition the project is planning a wine tasting party from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 18 at Plaza Linda restaurant at Delfino Place in Carmel Valley Village.

Although close to a famous resort, the people on the outskirts of Cabo San Lucas are unemployed, poor and living in substandard conditions, many children do not have shoes or a blanket to sleep with. Esperanza founded the Cabo San Lucas Project to help these people.

To help this project and to send Brooks along with enough supplies and donations, please send your contributions to Ammi Brooks, PO Box 221611, Carmel 93922, or call 624-0228.

WATER MANAGEMENT DISTRICT HONORS CARL STANLEY WITH "WATER MISER" AWARD

At its November board of directors meeting, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District honored Carl E. Stanley with the Water Miser Award for October 1988.

Stanley was selected for the award because of his efforts to reduce water consumption in his 18-unit apartment building by more than 40 percent from the same period in 1987. Even with two laundry rooms on the same meter with the apartments, he was able to reduce consumption by installing low-flow toilets and other water-saving devices in each unit, in addition to educating his tenants about water conservation.

"The reduction is especially difficult for apartment complexes," explained Stanley, "due to the fact that tenants know the owner pays the bill, and there is no personal incentive to reduce usage."

The Water Miser Award for November will be presented at the MPWMD board meeting on Monday, Dec. 12.

REFUGEE SERVICES PROGRAM TO END

After 10 years of serving the area's refugee population, the Board of Directors of the Refugee Services Program (RSP) has announced that the agency will close its doors this Dec. 31. The announcement follows closely a decision by the State Department of Social Services that it would not continue funding any refugee programs for Monterey County, since the county now has very few refugees receiving welfare assistance.

RSP was organized in the late 1970s, when large numbers of Vietnamese "boat people" began to arrive in the U.S., including the Monterey Peninsula. Over the years, it has served more than 9,000 refugees, mostly Vietnamese, but also new residents from Poland, Afghanistan, Ethiopia, Cambodia, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Laos, Hungary, Iran, etc.

In announcing the RSP's plans to close, board president Lawrence V. Levine of Carmel commented: "The board has agreed that our mission is mostly complete. We have provided desperately needed services when it counted, and all of us,

Carmel Police provide security hints for holidays

JUST AS the Christmas season brings forth increased shoppers to Carmel businesses, it also marks a time for a rise in crime.

Carmel police have noted that there are several things that shopowners can do to prevent from being victimized. These include:

• Keep purses, wallets and handbags locked in a safe place.

Many times a criminal will see a busy shop and wander into the backroom, where he will steal money from a pocketbook or take the entire purse.

If he is challenged for being back there, the response, many times, is that he is looking for the restroom.

Don't be afraid to call the police if you are in question, said Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras, it's better to find out than to come up short.

"Most people don't actually want to suspect somebody, so that explanation is OK," Poitras said, referring to the restroom alibi.

• Keep an eye out for shoplifters.

Basically the only thing that a shopowner can do in this category, Poitras said, is to keep a watchful eye out.

Bad Checks.

The most effective thing a merchant can do to protect himself is to seek proper identification when taking a

"It's amazing how frequently businesses don't require an identification," Poitras said, adding that it sometimes takes three weeks for a bum check to work its way through the system. "With no I.D. we're dead in the water."

Poitras added that "the pen is mightier than the sword" and more money is stolen through forgery and bad checks than by armed robbery.

Burglary.

Poitras said there has been a noted increase in burglary during the past month — all except one business burglarized did not have an alarm.

The business that did have an alarm led to the arrest of a suspect.

"We would recommend that all businesses consider installing an alarm system," Poitras said.

nstalling an alarm:
• Embezzlement.

Now is a good time for an annual review of a shopowners money storage system — reduce temptation and opportunity by keeping the money out of sight.

Poitras said if any business owners want more advice or a shoplifting security talk, the police will be more than happy to visit the store.

Phone number for Carmel police is 624-6403.

HEART ASSOCIATION PROVIDES STUDENT RESEARCH GRANTS

The local American Heart Association, Central Mission Trails Chapter, has applications for the 1989 student research program. Students must be college juniors or seniors in the fall of 1989 to apply. Applications are due Thursday, Dec. 15.

In this program undergraduates receive $1,500 to cover living expenses for 10 weeks in the summer when they work with well-known medical scientists.

"We hope to attract students who are considering a career in research," said Patty Bond, local AHA chairman. "Our chapter will fund four students this year. In the past, this program has been a deciding factor for some students in their career choice. Our board encourages basic science students who have an interest in research to apply."

MEALS ON WHEELS; OFFICERS AND BOARD MEMBERS FOR 1988

The grand opening of the new Meals on Wheels building in Pacific Grove was marked by honors for the program's founding director, Sally Griffin, and as a public appreciation salute to the organization's many volunteers.

With several hundred in attendance, the event officially inaugurated an expanded program of meals for the elderly, disabled and handicapped, and the homebound. The number of people attending the center for the midday congregate meal is increasing, testing the new facility's available space.

An agenda that integrates serving meals with other uses of the new quarters has been developed, and attendance figures for all activities is growing.

The 1988 Executive Committee, composed of Executive Director Viveca Lohr and five board members, is also in place. The president is Arnold Green; vice president, Gary Duffel; secretary, Morley Brown; treasurer, Phil Snowden, and the past president is Michael Albov.

Nine members of the new board of directors include Albov, Yvonne Asher, Fletcher Burnham, William Campbell, Cyrus Fitton, Ann Grant, Russ Hansen, Bill Penick, and Elaine Vieira, all of whom are serving terms effective through next lune Serving through June of 1990 will be Norm Chetlin, Duffel, Green, Malcolm Jones, Jack McAnally, and Eugene Schrader.

Those whose term will run through mid-1991 are Brown, Mary Claypool, Irene Crispo, Dave Davis, Ken Horn, Pat Miniaci, Bob Montgomery, Phil Snowdon, Charles Sweet, and Teresa Wright.

MONSIGNOR EAMON MacMahon, pastor of the Carmel Mission Basilica for 16 years, will retire after more than 42 years in the priesthood. The parish is planning a party for him from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11 at Crespi Hall patio behind the mission.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer. 200 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 22 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

Poland said there are 22 routes, three of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

George Mendonca spent 47 years as superintendent of a topiary garden on an estate in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, shaping shrubs into living sculptures of animals and birds. It's not the kind of work that produces quick results it takes 16 years of training and trimming for a shrub to mature into an elephant. Now 78, and officially retired, Mendonce continues to live on the estate. There he weaves baskets, gives advice to gardeners, and still makes starter frames for new shrubs that will extend his artistry far in to the future.

AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Chicago Line

"THE FATHER of British Blues" has reached legendary status, now he wants to be a star, and deservedly so.

John Mayall, whose list of former bandmates reads like a Who's Who of British rock - Eric Clapton, Peter Green, Mick Taylor, John McVie, Mick Fleetwood, Jack Bruce, Aynsley Dunbar, etc. etc. — is on the road again with a crackerjack blues band and a new album on a major label, Chicago Line, under his arm.

(Mayall and his Bluesbreakers will appear at The Club tonight, Thursday, Dec. 8, see story in this issue.)

The new album — on Island Records a is a throwback to the old days of the early '60s when Mayall and friends were pioneering a British blues revival with its gritty, straight-ahead blues character. It's no coincidence the album is titled Chicago Line because the tunes on them are straight from the South Side of the Windy City. Island has even released a single from the album, Jimmy Rogers' The Last Time, which Mayall hopes may be his true breakthrough after more than 25 years in the business.

"Well I'm going to work at being a star now," he says laughing, during a telephone interview Tuesday from his hotel room in - of all places - Gilroy. "I've been a legend up to now, now we'll see if we can make some dents in the record world so we can bring our music to a wider audience."

And you can excuse Mayall for sounding overly enthusiastic about his new record deal - after more than three dozen (yes, three dozen) albums, no bonafide hits, and only one gold album (1969's The Turning Point), this "comeback" may thrust him into rarified atmosphere.

"Yeah, it's really an exciting thing," he admits. "It's been so long since I've had a record deal and even longer since I've had a dynamite band as this one. It seem like all the pieces have fallen into place beautifully. I think it's a wonderful time right now."

With his new album and new band (actually the band has been together since 1983 — a record for Mayall), he hopes to reach a wider audience, and by going back to his roots he's able to bring his career around full circle - after all, he did reach his zenith and his reputation as a star-maker with his early albums.

"Yes, it's a deliberate attempt to revive those early roots, so to speak," he says in his still-recognizable English accent. "It's a new generation of people and they missed out on that the first time around. They're discovering it just the same as they did during the "British Blues Revival" in the early '60s. This is the perfect time, really."

As for the new version of the Bluesbreakers — guitarists Coco Montoya and Walter Trout, bassist Bobby Haynes and Joe Yuele - Mayall couldn't be happier.

"One can't compare with the individual stylists (such as Clapton or Green), but this is without a doubt the best band I've ever had," he says. "It's borne out by the fact that we've been together for so long and still feel that this is just the beginning."

The album itself features 10 tunes, mostly penned by Mayall himself, but including Rogers' The Last Time, Blind Boy Fuller's Cold-Blooded Mama, Walter Davis' Tears Came Rollin' Down and Trout's Life in the Jungle. Chicago Line features mostly lively straight-ahead blues numbers, one's almost autobiographical, another sadly ironic (Gimme One More Day), and another infused with a bit of fun and humor.

"When the music's at its best, it's always out of something like that," Mayall says when told he sounds like he was having fun on the recording. "I don't think that any music - when there's a strain or too much technical inhibition surrounding it - comes off as well as something that feels really natural. You get a certain energy there - it's the sort of energy you usually only find on a live album - and now we've managed to bring that feeling to the studio."

As for touring, which Mayall hasn't done too much of on this side of the world, it suits him just fine, especially with a new album backing him up.

"I love it," he says. "The thing that makes it all worthwhile - I mean there are days when it's pretty rough in the travel department - is the enthusiasm and appreciation the people give to us for the music."

Is Mayall surprised at all the attention he's getting after all these years?

"Yeah, it's a little short of a miracle," he laughs. "As far as I'm concerned I've been banging me head against the wall for quite a while now. From the point of view of the Bluesbreakers in the '80s, this is a new step. It's beautiful."

Dickens 'A Christmas Carol' presented by Nebraska troupe

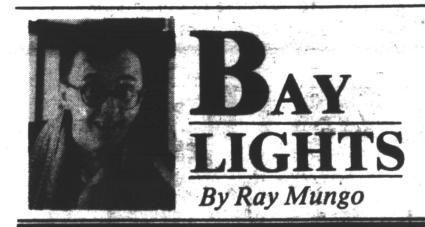

A STAGED MUSICAL adaptation of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol will be presented on Sunday, Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Sunset Theater in Carmel.

This production is a family tradition all across the nation as four tours crisscross the country bringing Christmas cheer to thousands. This all began 10 years ago when Charles Jones, executive director of the Omaha Community Playhouse, scripted his version of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol for a cast at the Omaha Community Playhouse. John Bennett, music director; Joanne Cady, choreographer, and James Othuse, resident designer, added the period music, dances, and magical sets to create what has become a tradition in Omaha-selling out each year before the play opens.

In 1977 the Nebraska Theater Caravan, professional touring wing of the Omaha Community Playhouse, took this enormous production including 36 people, 200 costumes, and magic sets on tour in the Midwest. After nine years communities like Columbus, Ohio; Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids, Michigan; as well as Aurora, Illinois, have adopted this family classic as their own, inviting the company year after year to perform for their audiences.

Tickets are $12.50 general and $8.50 for children. For reservations, information call the director's office 624-3996.

Fool on the hill

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING in San Francisco is an old tradition for local Monterey Peninsulans who steal away for a day or two of joining the happy throngs in Union Square. It's made easier this year by special holiday rates at the elegant Huntington Hotel, 1025 California St., high atop Nob Hill and directly across the street from the sublime Grace Cathedral.

The Huntington was "the last word in luxury" when built in 1922 as a residential apartment complex for the very rich. After World War II it was converted to a hotel but maintained the generous floor plans and large suites. It commands breathtaking city and bay views from every unit.

In the old days, guests included the likes of Princess Grace, the Vanderbilts and the Rothschilds. More recent visitors are Luciano Pavarotti, Alistair Cooke, Robert Redford, Leontyne Price, Helen Gurley Brown and, you guessed it, Bay Lights.

We checked into the navy and grey suite decorated by Princess Lee Radziwill to the joyous pealing of bells in the cathedral tower, gleaming with the reflected light of sunset. Heavy floral print curtains framed the windows and the furniture was a study in classic formality and enormous comfort. Included were a huge antique walnut desk with brass handles, Ming Dynasty vase lamps, marble countertops, massive oil portrait of a nautical captain of yesteryear, a silk brocade bedspread on the king size bed, a Chinese coffee table with a history, and a bottle of 1987 Sauvignon Blanc from Cakebread Cellars, chilled to perfection.

The California Street cable car stops in front of the hotel, clang-clang, but guests are welcome to complimentary use of the 1978 Rolls Royce Silver Shadow chauffeured car for oneway transit to Union Square and the financial district. We could develop a taste for that kind of travel, also for the Neutrogena toiletries, Irish linen towels and plush terrycloth robes provided with the room.

The Big Four restaurant off the lobby has adopted a creative and eclectic menu under the guidance of executive chef Gloria Ciccarone-Nehls. Aside from the classic Continental entrees you'd expect, she adds Oriental dishes, Latin flavors, modern wild game cookery and more, and the prices are quite fair.

After an evening of bohemian San Francisciana hosted by top exec Mitchell Danielson of Esprit fashions, morning found us in the restaurant savoring the complimentary full breakfast which comes with every room. As for the shopping, we can tell you the new Nordstrom's on Market Street is quite an eyeful but Bay Lights prefers little out-of-the-way stationery stores, exotic imports and off-the-wall funny items hard to find around here...

CONGRATS TO new marketing and sales director Mica Hill, who's been with the Huntington four months since coming over from the Boston Harbor Hotel at Rowes Wharf, where he worked for Dennis Mills, the new G.M. at The Highlands Inn, which by the way just announced a $165 rate Sundays through Thursdays until March 1989. (That's about 45 per cent off regular price for the spa suite with fireplace and private view deck.) Judith Martin ("Miss Manners") enjoyed the inn and was treated like a queen...

Ah, the generosity of the season...

Unstructured program poses problems

SOPRANO SHARON DAVIS and tenor Keith Ikaia-Purdy appeared under the auspices of the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association, at the Pacific Grove Middle School, in a concert of solos and duets from opera, operetta, musical comedy, etc., on Wednesday, Nov. 30.

This type of program is beset with problems, the main one being that there is no structure. A successful program is a carefully planned bit of work, with or without a theme. On this evening, there was first a duet, then they alternated arias for a while, and they sang another duet. Even grouped by composer, as in part one, it has a very miscellaneous feeling.

Offering an entire program of old chestnuts can also have difficulties. Although many of the audience probably loved hearing them, an equal number probably remembered their favorite singer of generations past singing that aria. And nobody - repeat: nobody - can compete with the halo effect of memory!

The first half of the program was devoted to operative arias and duets by Verdi and Puccini. Although both Davis and Purdy were clearly more comfortable with this repertoire than that which followed the intermission, difficulties abounded. Not the least was the demand made by leaping from one character and situation to another. Davis' "Ah, fors'e lui" from La Traviata was cool and distant; Purdy's "Nessum dorma" from Turandot was more posturing than passionate.

The first act finale from Madama Butterfly seemed to miss the point completely. Cio-Cio-San's quaint combination of rapture and coyness, and Pinkerton's eyer more urgently repeated "come on" (as the camera pans to the ceiling) were submerged in volume.

In fact, volume was the one thing we got a lot of - loud and louder. Furthermore, the acoustics of that auditorium are very unkind to voices, giving a hard edge in the upper registers.

After intermission, the fare was lighter in intent if not in execution, ranging from "Deep Purple" (the most serious misjudgment of the evening) to West Side Story by way of Vienna and Sorrento.

The good news is that Davis and Purdy are young, and they will improve with experience. The voices are basically good. Davis' technique was more secure than Purdy's, and one worries about the lifespan of a tenor voice used at full volume so much of the time.

Bryndon Hassman provided adequate, but unenthusiastic, piano assistance. This kind of program is a real challenge to pianists, as they are called upon to reproduce the notes and phrasings of the orchestra without the means. As Hassman got warmed up, he demonstrated an ability to do this with some finesse, but he helped the singers more than they helped him.

I Cantori revives forgotten masterworks

THE CREATIVE POWER of Vivaldi and Handel regardless of the medium they selected was both varied and rich. When a forgotten masterwork is reviewed, we invariably confront new vistas in their art.

So was the case on Friday, Dec. 2 in the Carmel Mission Basilica. I Cantori Di Carmel under the direction of Dr. Sal

Ferrantelli rendered a respectable accounting in their performance of works by Vivaldi and Handel. Vivaldi's church music is a world all its own — and it is "terra incognita." The Chamber Mass sung that night contains only the Kyrie and Gloria; a pasticcio edited by Vahe Aslanian, and published as a "Missa Brevis."

The "Kyrie" opened with a good solid sound and a somewhat weaker entrance of women's voices in the "Christie," strengthed by the full chorus in the reprise of "Kyrie eleison." The introductory statement to the Gloria in excelsis Deo, "With the sound of instruments and voices," was sung by Linda Purdy with her usual dependable and vocally secure technique. Then Vivaldi takes each phrase of the Gloria and devotes an entire section (or movement) to it. The work is of deep religious conviction, surpassing majesty of thought with complete mastery of polyphonic technique.

The Gloria, somewhat hard driven, found orchestra and chorus a little too over-powering for the soloists. The soft, well-blended entrances lacked presence but afforded some attempt at varied dynamics.

Soprano Kathy Knight joined Ms. Purdy in a well balanced duet, with fine musical interpretation of "Laudamus te." Tenor Nile Norton exhibited an even vocal line all evening in his solos, both in the Vivaldi Mass and Handel's Anthem, as well as fluid delivery of the ornamental passages elegantly phrased and with optimum diction.

There was some exceptionally fine playing by oboists Guy Hardy and Amy Duerr throughout the performance.

In the finale, "Cum Sancto Spiritu," Ferrantelli was in firm command and kept his forces in full control at all times. The mass concludes with a powerful "Amen."

Handel's Concerto Op. 4, No. 5 in F major offers no special difficulties or challenges for soloist or orchestra; rather than a showpiece per se, it is more of a divertissement and its four short contrasting movements are easy to digest. The Larghetto which was carefully paced proceeded to an Allegro with the orchestra complimenting the organ in healthy responses.

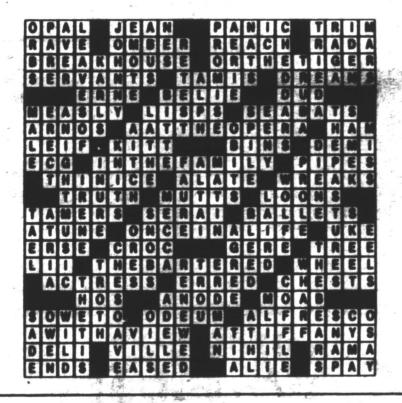

This was followed by a leisurely pastorale-like Siciliana and ended with a Presto in a gigue, not quite presto, but moderately timed and with good ensemble playing and by the soloist, William Zeitler.

George Frideric Handel's Anthem, "Let God Arise," reveals the composer at his contrapuntal best with a fullbodied oboe solo. Soprano Kathy Knight was insecure at times and seemed to be searching for her vocal line in the florid passages; her lyrical singing was warm and interpretive. Here once again — Nile Norton sang with true artistry.

Some of the entrances of the chorus were marred by mushy articulation but were quickly redeemed by well satisfied sounds and growing intensities — reaching a satisfactory climax in the finale as soloists, chorus, orchestra and conductor awakened to full stature in a glorious "Hallefuia."

'The Fantasticks' opens at college

WITH CHRISTMAS less than three weeks away, local theaters are again looking for ways to spread a sense of cheer and goodwill. At MPC, they've accomplished this goal with their current production of The Fantasticks, a romantic musical allegory about young love.

Introduced as "the longest-running show in American history," (the first production opened in 1960 and is still running off-Broadway), The Fantasticks employs just about every romantic cliche and plot device ever used — the wall from Pyramus and Thisbe, the feuding parents from Romeo and Juliet, the dashing bandit from countless potboilers you name it, this play has it. Who'd have thought you could make something so pleasantly sweet from this much corn? But

Much of the credit for the success of the MPC production goes to the actors and to director Conrad Selvig for allowing the play to stand on its own. There's no artificial tugging at heartstrings here, no wallowing in sentiment or nostalgia. The audience is under no obligation to like or dislike, and that freedom from manipulation adds to the enjoyment.

Because this is a musical, Selvig has encountered the same problem that confronts every other Monterey County director of musicals: there aren't enough trained voices to go around. If all our good singers were gathered in one place, we could enjoy one fine musical production. But usually, the singers are scattered in different plays in the area and audiences hear the music sung adequately, no more than that.

Fortunately, the MPC cast shines in the acting department, so what's lost musically is regained in other ways. Kerry Hartjen is fine as the Narrator who doubles as the Bandit. His performance in the latter role incorporates subtle layers of bravado, arrogance, wisdom and sadness — no real menace, but enough mystery to keep the audience on its toes.

Jessica Ann Stevenson is delightful as Luisa, The Girl. She's the very picture of wide-eyed wonder, full of naive fantasy and daydreams, projecting the supreme confidence of the very young that their youth will last forever. Stevenson takes her character earnestly but not seriously, avoiding both caricature and stereotype.

Equally enjoyable is Jody Van Duinen in the parallel role of Matt, The Boy. He's a milk-and-cookies kid who thinks he's ready to tackle dragons. Van Duinen invests his character with optimistic exuberance. But then he needs it: nothing else would see him through that swordfight!

Len Parry plays Henry, The Actor — and he almost steals the show. Dusty, watery of eye and wobbly of knee, Henry is a cross between the White Knight in Alice Through the Looking Glass and Merlin in The Seven Faces of Dr. Lao. It's funny and touching — a gem of a performance. Michael Robbins as Mortimer, the Man Who Dies brings humor and a sense of steadfast lovalty to what is basically a thankless role as Henry's sidekick.

Lyn Whiting as The Mute rounds out the cast. Lacking lines, she nevertheless manages to convey satisfaction, worry, disapproval and triumph at appropriate moments throughout the play.

Full marks to Barney Hulse on piano, Lurene Mattson on harp, Kathy Nathan on bass and Richard Conklin on drums. Their musical talents help to compensate for the actors' disappointing singing abilities. So does Lucretia Butler's choreography.

would be more in character to present both as 16-year-olds. What's charming in a teenager becomes irritating in a 20-yearold college student.

You're a family man, Charlie Brown

THE WHARF THEATER last week opened what they billed as "The Perennial Hit Family Musical" -You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown,

The family musical part still holds — meaning that it's something (Thank God) you can take the kids to. And you should. As for perennial hit, I'm not so sure. I found it dated and tired. The Peanuts strip has been around a long time and its faded winsomeness is yielding to the fresh brashness of the likes of Calvin and Hobbes. If you've been around as long as Peanuts has, like I have, you may find it so too. So drop off the kids or send them with the sitter. You'll have better things

The casting is very good, however. Marc Slattery's Charlie not only catches the resemblance but the mannerisms as well. The multi-talented Robert Basgall gives us an appealing

A word (just a tiny one, I promise) about the play itself. Matt is supposed to be 20, Luisa 16. However, because Matt is just as given to fantasy and daydreams as Luisa, I think I performance as Snoopy ... but perhaps he is too good. Since Snoopy occasionally speaks English, and the dog suit is underplayed, it's sometimes hard to keep him in character. Maybe a pair of floppy ears would help.

Michele Savage gives us a suitably crabby Lucy and Linus (Michael Abinante) and Schroeder (John Freeman) are very, very serious. Peppermint Patty (Maura Leos) cavorts and clowns in between the others. You can't help but notice that the boys are serious, contemplative, philosophical, and the girls are, well, not serious, contemplative or philosophical. I guess perennial family hits inspired by revered cartoonists are exempt from gender role analysis. As a sign of progress, current Peanuts comic strips occasionally feature an intelligent female, but as you might have guessed, she wears thick glasses and an ugly hairdo and is called "sir."

The musical numbers that I recommend staying awake for are The Book Report, The Baseball Game, and Little Known Facts. I found myself wondering what some of the other numbers would look like to a man from Mars who did not have a knowledge of Peanuts lore, I guess that's the kind of thing I do when I get bored.

The Frohman Academy's Mikel (pronounced Michael) Pippi is clearly the moving force behind this production. He is Producing Director; he staged and directed; he assisted Gloria Elber with the choreography.

Lighting design was by Kevin Cain, who created some very nice effects. Music direction and piano was by Heidi Toy assisted by Dean Winston on percussion. Set design was by Bill Doggett who used oversized children's blocks for the main motif. Mary Ann Seymour's costuming was appropriately simple except for the Snoopy problem. Striped shirts and short pants/skirts ruled the day for the humans.

'Adopt-a Soldier' this holiday season

The installation chaplains at Fort Ord are looking for families in the community who would like to adopt-asoldier for Christmas.

The goal at Fort Ord is to provide an opportunity for soldiers to celebrate Christmas Day in a family atmosphere.

The only requirement for these families is to pick up the soldier at 1 p.m. on Christmas Day and return them to the post by 9 p.m.

Being able to celebrate Christmas and to partake in the holiday traditions, to include a Christmas dinner, would be a wonderful experience for soldiers who may not have the opportunity to do so this year.

If you are interested in adopting-a-soldier for Christmas, please contact either Chaplain Boyd at 242-3308 or 242-3882 or Chaplain Mounts at 242-2508 or 242-5288 by Dec. 12.

'Nutcracker Caper': homegrown Christmas show

WANTED: audience of children to participate in and enjoy one homegrown Christmas play.

On the surface, The Nutcracker Caper seems to have a lot going for it: Laurel and Hardy, gangsters, elves, penguins, slapstick humor, and even a moral. It's performed by local actors, it offers a chance for audience participation, it's even performed on a real stage at the Robert Down School in Pacific Grove. But none of this production's good qualities will save it if there's no one there to watch the show.

Basically, The Nutcracker Caper tells the tale of two thugs, Spats and Noodles (good performances by Randi Andrews and Diana Crockett) who have stolen Santa's Christmas gift-giving list. Pursued by Roderick the Reindeer Ranger (nicely done by Martin Schmidt), the hoods hide the list inside a player piano that Stan and Ollie (Robert Colter and Carey Crockett) are attempting to move. Then, in true farce fashion, the piano runs off by itself, Stan and Ollie go in search of the plano, the gangsters-chase our boys, and Roderick chases the gangsters.

CAREY CROCKETT (left) portrays Oliver Hardy, Kirsten Lovelle is Christy the Magic Christmas Tree and Bob Colter plays Stan Laurel in the Family Fantasy Theatre's Christmas production, The Nutracker Caper! It continues in the auditorium at Robert Down School in Pacific Grove.

the homespun is a bit threadbare. The characterization of Laurel and Hardy, for example. In real life, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy were a true team. After Hardy died in 1957, Laurel refused to perform again. Their off-screen partnership and friendship is visible even through their on-screen nagging and jibing. As Oliver and Hardy, Crockett and Colter have yet to capture that underlying sense of teamwork and companionship. They often seem merely to be aping the trademark movements and gestures of Stan and Ollie — the tie-fidgeting, the hair-ruffling and so on. Perhaps as they continue to work on this act, they will find the necessary collaborative spirit for their performances.

The show also suffers from script problems. Though press releases described this as "an original Christmas show written with the joy of family sharing in mind," the program does not share the name of the playwright. Nevertheless, the playwright, whoever he or she is, might want to consider these suggestions. Christy the Magic Christmas Tree serves a purely expository function within the play. That's boring, whether you're a child or an adult. Give Christy an active role, one that engages audience attention.

The ending also presents problems. When Christy steps forward to tell us that "the magic of Christmas is the magic of sharing," the ending is diluted because we're asked to pay simultaneous attention to two equally important elements — The Moral and the capture of Spats and Noodles.

Nor is there any satisfying conclusion to anyone's activities. We're left to wonder if Perky and the Elf (Carol Collin and Koren Clippinger) will have to tidy up the mess in the restaurant by themselves, and how Stan and Ollie will get their piano off the tundra, and whether Spats and Noodles have learned their lesson. These are not just ambiguities in the play: they're loose ends, and they should be tied up or clipped off or

As I said earlier, The Nutcracker Caper includes many elements that could make it fun for children. The show even opens with a reading of Clement Moore's "Twas the Night Before Christmas," in which children from the audience are invited to step up front and don construction paper headgear as they enact the poem.

I hope those responsible for this production find a way to iron out the difficulties that were evident on opening night. With a little more work, this could be a cute little show.

Singing Christmas Tree vocalizes on Cannery Row

THE 25TH ANNUAL performance of the outdoor singing Christmas Tree can be heard nightly from Wednesday through Sunday, Dec. 14-18. The 45-minute musical program can be heard beginning 7:30 p.m. at the corner of Prescott and Cannery Row in Monterey.

The Singing Christmas Tree has performed consecutively since 1964. The 35-foot high structure, flocked with pine boughs and decorations, will accommodate 70 carolers. One of the last outdoor singing trees in the world, it has attracted visitors from around the country.

Admission is free to hear the Singing Christmas Tree, which is co-sponsored by the Cannery Row Promotion District, Peninsula Christian Center and KWAV Radio. Free parking will be available in the new Cannery Row Parking Garage, beginning the evening of Friday, Dec. 16. For details, call 646-1191.

Bluesman John Mayall has new album, plays Monterey

By MAC McDONALD

ONE OF the ironies of last summer's Monterey Bay Blues Festival was that it took a long-haired, white British musician in shorts and a tank top to show the audience how the blues was supposed to be played.

The two-day event at the Monterey Fairgrounds was long on Las Vegas-style lounge soul and appearances and short on the blues, that is until John Mayall's Bluesbreakers ripped and snorted through their all-too-brief set.

In what was essentially an opening act position, Mayall and crew got the festival off to a rousing start, with Mayall singing, playing harmonica, guitar and keyboards with abandon and guitarists Coco Montoya and Walter Trout trading screaming blues licks. The two headline acts that followed couldn't quite keep the momentum going.

"I think it was probably a deliberate attempt on their part to have us on first to get the show off with a bang," says Mayall in a telephone interview Tuesday, "and also to bring people down there early — a lot of blues festivals put people the audience haven't heard of on first and nobody comes. We enjoyed it, it was a lot of fun."

Mayall will make a return engagement to the Monterey Peninsula, this time in a smallclub atmosphere, when he hits the stage Thursday, Dec. 8 at The Club of Monterey. He'll also be bringing with him the same Bluesbreakers that performed so well at the festival, somewhat of a departure for Mayall, who used to go through bandmembers like tissue paper.

Opening for Mayall at 9 p.m. will be Ken Arconti and the Blowtop Blues Band, an out-fit out of Santa Cruz.

Mayall, once dubbed the "Father of British Blues" by the music press, has experienced somewhat of a rejuvenation in the past couple of years, aided in the last couple of months by the release of his first studio album in several years, Chicago Line on Island Records. As the title implies, Mayall has shed his experimental bent (remember the all-acoustic The Turning Point and the various jazz-blues fusion recordings?), and gone straight to his roots — Chicago blues.

Helping Mayall realize this rejuvenation are a couple of hot young blues players, Montoya, a veteran of Albert Collins' Icebreakers, and Trout, a former member of Canned Heat. Montoya, true to his stints with Collins' and Freddy King (an early idol of the young Mayall), plays a stinging, slashing, Chicago-style blues guitar, while Trout adds a heavy rock leavening to his blues playing. Bass player Bobby Haynes and drummer Joe Yuele round out the hard-driving quintet.

"One can't compare them with the individual stylists (such as Clapton or Green), but this is without a doubt, the best band I've ever had," says Mayall about the group that has been together since 1983 — the longest in Mayall's storied career.

The new edition of the Bluesbreakers play about 120-140 shows a year, mostly small club and arena dates, another aspect of his "comeback" that harkens back to his earlier days. And even though his album sales have lagged since the early '70s and his popularity has waned over the years, he finds a certain fulfillment in playing to his true fans — those who attend his performances.

"There's been absolutely no connection over the years between my records and the popularity that I've had in clubs," he says. "That side of it has been good all along. In terms of our live shows, we been constantly in the public eye."

And even though some of Mayall's former bandmates and proteges have gone on to bigger and ostensibly better things (Eric Clapton and Fleetwood Mac founders Mick Fleetwood and John McVie come to mind), he harbors no regrets.

"When I compare the happiness and the fulfillment I get out of my music and the freedom I have," he says, "I can't imagine anyone enjoying what they do more than I do, so I can't feel envious of people who get caught up in these huge combines and sometimes lose sight of the joy of playing the music. As for the rest of it, if it's supposed to happen, it will happen."

BLUESMAN JOHN Mayall — riding high on his first new studio release in several years Chicago Line — will lead his new Bluesbreakers to The Club of Monterey for one show, Thursday, Dec. 8. Opening will be Ken Arconti and the Blowtop Blues Band.

Carl Jung enthusiasts gather for a holiday potluck meeting

A POTLUCK Christmas Party featuring a "Jungian Grab-Bag" is slated for 6:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 9, sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G, Jung at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Contents of the grab-bag—who gets what is dictated by chance—will help create an "oracle" without doing an I Ching, and participants ask for a New Year's forecast. Each participant will make a response to the "chance" gift received, and then place it in a framed space. The scene created when all gifts are in place can become the "oracle" via its total symbolic meaning to individuals and to the group.

From the announcement about "what to bring": "...Let chance take over in deciding...an attic or cellar item; an item "you couldn't live without" last year!—maybe you stole it from the kid down the street; something you were about to give or throw away; or what you "couldn't resist" from your favorite shop/boutique/bookshop...or wherever...keep cost down under $5, and bring nothing that either moves or melts!"

About the potluck part: bring your favorite recipe for the holidays; the treasury will supply beverages and utensils, etc.

During the evening, there will also be a brief business session to formalize the group's administration and activities for the coming year.

The public is invited; there is no fee for attendance. The Friends of C.G. Jung is an informal collection of people who share an enthusiasm for making use of the eminent Swiss psychologist's seminal ideas in practical ways to enhance their everyday lives.

Prior notification of attendance is requested to help making efficient plans, but is not required. For further information, call or write: 649-8809; 853 Pacific St., Monterey.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Local Color

HERE'S A GOOD question for your stockpile of jazz trivia. Did vocalist/pianist Mose Allison ever record as a trumpet player?

In a word—yes. He studied trumpet as a very young man and worked with it for years. Mose played muted horn on the Local Color session. This was done under the Prestige banner in November 1957 with Addison Farmer on bass and drummer Nick Stabulas.

Jazz critic Ira Gitler wrote back then that Allison's trumpet sound "smacks of Harry Edison with undertones of Louis Armstrong and King Oliver."

While he was here for that wildly successful one-nighter at Monterey Bay Club—folks were lined up outside waiting for seats—Mose revealed that fame has cost him his second instrument. He came over to KRML Jazz Radio and did a late afternoon interview with Johnny Adams. Before and after, he hung out with other station staffers, answering a few questions in the thoughtful manner of people raised on the Mississippi Delta

"No," Mose replied, "I don't work with my trumpet any more. In fact, I haven't touched it in about a decade. The trumpet takes a lot of effort—just to keep your chops up. Even though I've cut down to 175 nights a year on the road, I could never find time enough."

Mose said too that he has been talking with a producer for Italian television. "They want me to be part of a series on jazz singers—we'll see what happens."

On the subject of material: "I'm not interested in your garden variety love song. Much too cute. I like to find old songs and do renovaton jobs on them."

He said he enjoys the Monterey Peninsula and has friends here (Carmel Valley bassist Buddy Jones foremost among them) and "surely would like to come back" on future engagements.

CAN'T MAKE it to Rio during wintertime 1988-89? Well, strong hearts know patience. Cultural groups already have served notice that the Brazilian beat will be a firm part of Monterey Bay Area's atmosphere early next year.

A brief notice says Carmel Classic Arts Festivals again will offer Carnaval Monterey. Announced time and place: February 11 at Monterey Conference Center.

The last edition was great and colorful fun as many hundreds of celebrants turned out in bright, imaginative costumes. Highly individual garb and masks will be encouraged once more.

Event planners say they'll bring back Batucaje, the Brazilian music and dance troupe fronted by Jose Lorenzo. These people know what partying's all about—at the same time retaining that fine edge of superb performers. More on all this when details develop.

Meanwhile, Santa Cruz organizations—Kuumbwa Jazz Center and Tandy Beal Dance Company—report they're in the planning stages with a two-day Carnaval on that side of the water. March 31 and April 1 were given as target dates.

The event's seen as a joint benefit for the two groups. An early outline says a "Rio-style" celebration "will culminate in an extravaganza" at Civic Auditorium on the Saturday evening.

"The kick-off will be Friday night with musical events at Kuumbwa and another downtown location," says the announcement sent along by Tandy Beal's Marcus Cato and Tim Jackson of Kuumbwa. "Late Saturday afternoon a traditional costume parade incorporating a samba drum corps will lead the way to the Civic where festivities will include food, dancing, Latin and African musicians and dancers."

At present they're checking out possible headliners and sponsors. It's said that advance tickets will go on sale by late February.

Both non-profits are supported by individuals, businesses, foundations and arts agencies.

GIFT-GIVING time draws near. Some suggestions:

—Knockout collection assembled by John Edward Hasse, the Smithsonian's curator of American music. Focal point: Hoagy Carmichael. Included are 49 Carmichael songs with performances ranging from 1927 (Frankie Trumbauer Orchestra) to 1987 (Wynton Marsalis). Also Pops Armstrong, Billie Holiday, Sinatra, Sarah Vaughan, Carmen McRae, Bing, Hank Jones, Ray Charles, Ella, Mildred Bailey, so many others. Hoagy's there as vocalist on 10 of his own tunes.

Available at $37.95 plus $3.49 for handling and shipping. Contact Smithsonian Institution Recordings, PO Box 23345, Washington, DC 20026.

-Longtime jazz writer and record producer Orrin Keepnews has a new book out. The 238-page collection of highly intelligent pieces was published by Oxford Press and costs $19.95.

Clear and insightful writing prevails as Keepnews considers old friends like Miles Davis, Bill Evans, Monk, Cannonball Adderley. Wes Montgomery, Lenny Bruce. Valuable observations too on Bird Parker and Jelly Roll Morton. One section describes the producer's job from an in-the-booth perspective.

Bill Evans entitled an original composition Re: Person I Knew. That's an anagram for Orrin Keepnews.

—The Magic Couple and Magic Lady continue on their wondrous ways. New jazz albums show that these national treasures just get better while the decades ramble by.

Jackie Cain and Roy Kral (magical because they seem everfresh) offer a mixed bag that shines. Scat duets, tight charts and piano work by Roy, Jackie's strong way with ballads—all contribute tastefully on Full Circle. Eric Miller produced for Contemporary.

Jackie gives a wise, frankly enchanting interpretation ("what tenderness you taught me") to the Kral tune entitled In the Dark. Husband and wife share crisp fun and exquisite vocal timing when they take up Gerry Mulligan's Line for Lyons. You know: Jimmy Lyons. Monterey Jazz Festival's honcho.

Jackie and Roy always work with fine musicians. Doing this session: Conte Candoli, Bill Perkins, Bob Cooper, Bill Watrous, Monty Budwig, Jeff Hamilton.

Miss Lena Horne (magical simply because she's Lena) uses a full orchestra and guest vocalists as well as small groups on The Men in My Life from Three Cherries Records. She's in great voice on a number of standards plus lesser-known ballads—and there's always that trademark delivery which could charm anyone at all or freeze a fool if the lady so desired.

Joining her for duets (one track apiece) are Joe Williams and Sammy Davis Jr. She gives her musical directors on the session—keyboardists Mike Renzi and Frank Owens—plenty of room to work out instrumentally. Frank Foster and guitarist Rodney Jones also contribute charts.

Peg had left a very important installation of officers meeting to rush down here and it wasn't even Roger.

The players here rank among the planet's best. Everyone works at top form when supporting Lena Horne.

—Oakland jazz pianist Jon Jang's new cassette carries the title Jangle Bells and features classic holiday tunes along with originals. The $10 price tag. covers mailing too. Contact Francis Wong at Asian Improv Records—(415) 441-5264.

Carmel pianist Holland Garcia will solo at Cherry Hall concert

CARMEL PIANIST Holland Dhyana Garcia, whose repertoire ranges from original classical music to a synthesis of new age music and improvised compositions, will perform in concert Saturday, Dec. 10 at the Cherry Foundation.

from . an array Drawing sources-including Point Lobos which inspired a recording of the same name—Garcia creates a rich musical language he calls "new romanticism."

"Most people think of new age music as non-acoustic, synthesizer music. They think of it as quiet, happy, meditative music. I call my music 'new romanticism' because it comes from the heart and is aimed at the listener's heart. It's derived from the Romanticism of the last century but uses 20th century compositional techniques," Garcia said.

The result is a mixture of musical forms. suggesting an instrumental conspiracy between Arthur Rubinstein and the new age composers of the '80s.

Garcia studied music theory and harmony at Monterey Peninsula College before continuing his studies in music at Washington State University and at the Victoria Conservatory of Music in Canada.

On the Monterey Peninsula, Garcia studied with the late Gilbert Boyer, Eiko Yoshizato, Marjorie Wurzmann and Angie Machado. He has since recorded two tapes: "Point Lobos" and "Shadows of the Clouds."

HOLLAND Dhyana Garcia of Carmel will present a piano concert at 7 p.m. Saturday. Dec. 10 at the Cherry Foundation in Carmel. Garcia will play from his repertoire of classical and new age music, as well as improvised compositions.

Admission for the performance, which begins at 7 p.m. in the Cherry Foundation gallery, is $6 general; $4 for students, seniors and the military; and $1 for children.

A NECESSARY HIGHWAY

The new auditorium of the Monterey high school has been selected as the meeting place for the hundreds who will attend next Wednesday night to hear the discussion of ways and means to facilitate the completion of the Coalinga-San Lucas highway.

Unlike some other road propositions this one has merit. It is a real necessity. It would reduce considerably the mileage between Monterey Peninsula cities and the cities of the great San Joaquin valley.

The valley people want to come here summer and winter. Why not make it easier for them to do so?

Attend the meeting and help "put it over."

> WE LOSE PERRY NEWBERRY. GUARDIAN OF OLD CARMEL

Stilled forever is the strongest opponent to "progress" in the village of Carmel.

Perry Newberry died early Tuesday morning after a lengthy illness, but one which failed to halt Newberry's attack on those who would make Carmel a typical American "small town."

During the years of the Pine Cone's growth, Perry Newberry was its editor and publisher. Until his death, he was associate editor of The Pine Cone and continued to take an active interest in community affairs, giving his vigorous opinions through the Pine Cone's editorial columns.

In the words of Samuel Blythe, "Carmel will do well to remember and maintain his wisdom and his vision, lest some other inferior kind of a Carmel, as it surely will, take the place of the present beloved village—a common Carmel—a conventional Carmel—a dull, deadly commercial Carmel."

JFK'S LAST MESSAGE ON THE BILL OF RIGHTS

A short time before the death of our late president John F. Kennedy, he filmed a 2-1/2 minute trailer for distribution to theatres throughout the country, carrying a message to the nation on the Bill of Rights. The message is, in part, as follows:

"Because of the first ten amendments to the Constitution-because of the Bill of Rights—we have guaranteed freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of the press, the right to assembly and petition, the right of trial by jury, the right to be secure in one's own home, the protection of due process of law and private property and public trial—and many things that perhaps you take for granted but which we are guaranteed in the United States Constitution. FORESTRY COMMISSION REJECTS SUGGESTIONS FOR CITY-OWNED PARK

A 330-acre park at the southeast end of Carmel, largely ignored since the city acquired it in 1971, is suddenly getting noticed. Two student forestry technicians who completed a tree survey here last summer have, proposed a broader use of the Mission Trail Park.

A part-time naturalist should be hired to guide visitors through the park twice a month, they suggested in a report written in September but not released until Nov. 28 at the monthly Forestry Commission meeting.

The study also suggested the addition of rest rooms and an improved entrance to the park. But the commission rejected almost all of the recommendations in the report, Explained Matt Smith, the commission chairman, "We just don't change things that quickly here. It could attract too many people in the park, and we'd end up with another Carmel Beach."

MOVIE STARS GIVE LAND TO HOUSING AUTHORITY

The movie star owners of 350 acres in Carmel Valley gave away their property last week to the Monterey County Housing Authority, which could mean more housing for local senior citizens.

Bruce Moore, executive director of the housing authority, announced reception of the gift worth approximately $2.7 million at the Monterey County Planning Commission meeting Nov. 30. The property was owned by actors Clint Eastwood and James Garner, as well as Eastwood's wife, Margaret.

Moore said the gift was made with no legal conditions but with an oral agreement that the property be used to provide affordable housing for senior citizens.

Moore said the housing authority plans to build between 150 and 200 units of rental housing for low and moderate income seniors, which would be clustered out of view of Carmel Valley Road.

Rental is estimated at $12,000, overhead $20,000 and a contingency fund of $32,000.

The 4-percent surcharge also includes a $195,000 education fund for an entire year.

• The board will also be asked to consider a penalty plan for water users that exceed their ration.

The staff recommends that the first full "unit" of water over the ration, 748 gallons, the violator will be charged only $25. But every unit after that it will be an additional $250.

Water meters are measured in units of water. "We don't want it to be a complete shock at first," Buel said.

THE BOARD will also conduct the first reading on an ordinance to set up an appeals board which will consider variances to the rationing regulations and appeals of penalties.

The board has already voted that the appeals board will not consist of boardmembers but will consist of seven appointees of the board.

Anyone interested in serving on the appeals board should contact the water district for consideration.

"We expect that the board will hear mostly appeals," Buel

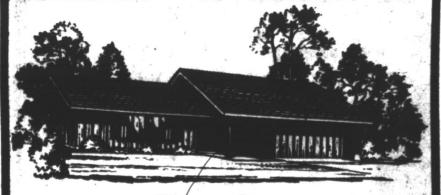

The staff will do most of the variance work, he added. The board will also be asked to consider some policy guidelines for what will receive a variance and what will not. Currently, the staff recommendations for variances include health-related and extended visitors to the home.

The district is sending out its postcard survey in mid-December to establish the numbers of residents at each water connection.

Buel said that anyone who wished to file for a variance should write to the district and include proof of the need for waiving the rationing restrictions, name, meter number and address.

Proof for a medical variance would be a prescription or written explanation from a doctor, Buel said.

THE MITCHELL GROUP

Fantasy House

It sits in a grove of Monterey pines high on the hills of Pebble Beach. The street is Flavin Lane, a quiet private drive with only 5 houses. This one is on a full acre with distant views of the ocean and the magical feel of the forest.

A broad driveway leads into the property, and a semi-circular stair brings you gently down to the main entrance. Most striking is the long profile of the house, well over 100 feet, with 8 combination window-skylights on the front and an equal number on the rear. The exterior is cedar shingles; the roof is a fireproof type of composition shakes.

As you enter the spacious (15x12) entrance hall, you are immediately aware of the woodwork you'll find throughout the house. It's all white oak, and in many doors and cabinets the grain is carefully matched.

Straight through the entrance is the den, with fireplace, a deck, and panelled white oak ceiling. To the right is the enormous (27x25) living room with another fireplace, multiple cabinets and an oak beamed ceiling. A large solarium opens off this and leads to a deck spanning most of the rear elevation.

A formal dining room, a breakfast room with a 3rd fireplace, the spacious kitchen and a laundry room are beyond this. Floors in kitchen and breakfast rooms are tiled, there's abundant tiled countertops and top quality appliances. A half-bath is handy just off the kitchen, and there's another near the entrance.

There are 2 very large bedrooms on the main floor, each with fully equipped (Jacuzzi) bath, spacious dressing room and outside deck. The master suite faces front, and the second bedroom looks toward the ocean.

A stairway goes up from the rear hallway to a 3rd bedroom, splendid quarters for guests. The bedroom is huge, there's a complete bath, a large bar sink, fireplace (No. 4!) and dressing room.

Everywhere there's a chance there's a cabinet or closet, all finished in beautiful white oak. There's enormous storage space on the lower level, more storage in an attic reached by a pull-down stair, and an oversized 3-car garage. The entire house is heated by radiant heat, divided into several zones so you can be selective.

The house was built by Jim Hoffman, and it has all the familiar marks of his uncompromising dedication to quality. It's $1,300,000. 4600 sq. ft.

Filling a void on the Central Coast, Emma Tropia Optical Boutique now specializes in personalized eyeglass frames.

"We have eyewear to enhance the uniqueness of each person," boasts owner Dr. Theresa De Barros, well-known peninsula opthamologist. "We don't want people to look like anyone else."

Before her store opened, De Barros says that when people wanted the latest in fashionable frames they had to either travel to Los Angeles or San Francisco in their quest.

"A lot of people say exclusive, but we mean exclusive," she says, adding that most times the boutique will generate 24-hour service.

And while Optical Boutique provides eye examinations as well as framing, De Barros says she works closely with the prescribing eye doctor.

Pomeroy Gallery suggests the gift of fine art

"Oh, I can't pick out a painting for anyone," you say. Why not? Someone once said they might not like it and how could you possibly be right? Try it.

I am reminded of my brother and his gift from me. No one else was there when we searched the fields and dales for bottles in Oregon. Only our collie.

One day I saw it — a painting by R. Bradford Johnson and the title caught my eye, "Where We Gathered Bottles!"

It hangs before my brother's desk in his office, always reminding him of a carefree childhood, the beauty of our forest home and the sister that trailed after him. It tells him I remember happy days with him, and it tells him of my lasting love. He knows that, for he looks at it every day.

Then, those brides!
How they loved the paintings of the Pascali rose.
The petals almost transparent like a bride's veil, fresh, innocent and altogether beautiful.

I know it made them feel like a beautiful flower and they will keep it as something special, reminding them of beginnings. My mother's friend from Texas — she delighted in her yellow rose by the same California artist, Marjorie Sharpe.

A FINE original painting, lovingly selected at Pomeroy Gallery of Fine Arts in Carmel, makes a most memorable gift. (Gregg Wutke photo).

Something special for my doctor for his great kindness to our family. His office nurse said he liked to sail. Oh, a little (Fil) Mottola, a scene of sparkling waters with white sails. It went right on the wall with such good feelings.

Exactly right, a floral garden and house among the trees. This person had fallen in love with Plymouth, Mass. The artist said the house was in Vermont but it might well have been in Plymouth. It will always be a happy reminder of a trip to the Atlantic.

I confidently assure you that if one plans and takes a trip anywhere in the world, they will love to recall it. Carmel or Paris or San Francisco by romantic impressionist Bela Bodo can be purchased for only $450.

The slogan on the letterhead of the Pomeroy Gallery of Fine Arts in Carmel-by-the-Sea is: "Buy a painting only when you feel it was painted just for you!" You know yourself, and you know your loved ones and friends very well. You have studied them, appreciating how unique they are. Just let them see that you know.

Don't drive your car dirty — here's Bay Mobile Detail

There's no reason to have a dirty car with Bay Mobile Detail conveniently serving all of Monterey County.

Serving this entire region, Bay Mobile Detail owner Evan Dick will come to your home or office and make your car look like new, inside and out.

Using only three to five gallons of water per washing, Dick specializes in paint sealing, which makes your car look brighter than even a thorough waxing.

"It's really a great thing, people love it," says Dick, who will service your car at his small shop in Pacific Grove, if that is to your liking.

Offering complete detailing from chrome polishing and vinyl restoration to tire cleaning and interior work, Bay Mobile Detail also provides engine cleaning and fabric stain guard.

Now that winter is here, Bay Mobile will rust-proof and undercoat your car to protect it from winter's harmful elements.

Keep in mind, a detailing from Bay Mobile is the ideal gift certificate for this holiday season.

For an appointment and free estimate, call 625-1452. Excellent references are available upon request.

O'Farrior Topiary turns gardens into menageries

Ever since the ancient Greeks and Romans invented the art of topiary, it has inspired love and loathing in the hearts of its beholders, depending upon the skill of the design. Now, talented sisters Tischia and Jennifer O'Farrior have brought that art form to Carmel.

Topiary is the art of training plants, vines or trees into geometric or animal shapes.

Created by shaping a wire frame, filling it with moss or soil, and planting, the American form of topiary at O'Farrior features dolphins, elephants and a menagerie of vegetative creatures that would even astound Noah.

Located in the Tuck Box Court on Dolores Street between Seventh and Ocean avenues, O'Farrior Topiary is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week and by appointment. Phone 624-0660.

TRANSFORM YOUR home or garden into a menagerie with the help of O'Farrior Toplary, where topiary whales, monkeys, liamas, dinosaurs and more are all within the realm of reality. O'Farrior Toplary is on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. (Gregg Wutke photo).
